ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A molecular complex between a tissue extract containing at least one known component and unknown components and a molecular vector including a particle bearing sugars and/or polypeptides. The molecular vector is able to recognize: the known component of the tissue extract, and a phagocytic receptor of monocyte derived cells, with the proviso that the polypeptides are different from antibodies.